'Skills For The Future: Managing Transition' Conference
Turin, Italy, 21-22 November

Turin, 29 October 2018 – The European Training Foundation (ETF), the EU Agency in charge of supporting countries in the EU neighbourhood to undertake reforms in education, training and labour policies, is organising 'Skills for the Future: Managing transition'. The conference will be held in Turin, Italy, on the 21-22 November 2018.

Managing Transition

Participants from more than 50 countries – entrepreneurs, training providers, policy makers, innovators – will be attending with the aim of exploring how transition countries can respond to global trends shaping the labour market of tomorrow from a skills perspective.

The conference will focus on four main topics:

1. Mastering global trends
2. Tackling country-specific challenges
3. Addressing the future of skills, education and training
4. Supporting the transition toward the future

Commenting on the event, Cesare Onestini, ETF Director said: 'The capacity of the EU and its neighbouring countries to adapt education and training systems will determine how well we are preparing the next generation to raise above the challenges of the present – harnessing their potential to contribute to inclusive growth and stability'.
