

Trudy Duffy

Assistant Principal Officer in the Further Education and Training Section of Ireland's Department (Ministry) of Further and Higher Education, Research, Innovation and Science.

Trudy's current responsibilities include policy oversight of Ireland's system of apprenticeship training, Ireland's involvement in PIAAC and construction sector skills development. Trudy has 13 years' experience in policy development within the education and training sector, most recently within the Higher Education Section where she delivered Technology Skills 2022 the national strategy for high-level ICT Skills, was secretary to the Transitions Reform programme focussed on providing pathways between and across the post-primary and tertiary education systems and was also a member of the ET2020 Working Group on Higher Education. Past policy experience relevant to VET sector includes adult and community education, adult career guidance initiatives and also the delivery of legislation supporting a professionalised teaching cohort in publicly funded schools.

Trudy holds a Masters in Economic Policy Analysis from the Institute of Public Administration, Dublin.